Swinton Offers To Resign

LONDON, May 14.—Prime Minister Chamberlain has accepted the challenge of the government's critics on re-armament in the air. When Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition, made his attack on the air ministry with a demand for a committee of inquiry, Mr. Chamberlain himself will intervene in defence of the government.

LONDON, May 14.—The Daily Herald (Labour) and the Daily Mail (Independent) today declared Viscount Swinton had offered to resign his portfolio as secretary for air but that Prime Minister Chamberlain had not yet accepted the offer.

Lord Swinton, whose direction of air rearmament has been under fire in the House of Commons, was a visitor at the prime minister's official residence Friday. Mr. Chamberlain also received Earl Baldwin, his predecessor as prime minister.

The Daily Herald's political editor said Earl Swinton, Lord Swinton's deputy on the air council and his spokesman in the Commons, would also resign.

He said it was significant Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, secretary for air from 1924 to 1929, called twice at No. 10 Downing street yesterday and remained for lunch.

"It is certain," The Herald said, "that the House of Commons has lost all confidence in the air ministry, especially after Lord Swinton's resignation."

Doubt Now Arises Over Differences In Spanish War

GENOA, Italy, May 14.—Doubt that Italian and French differences over Spain could be reconciled was coupled by Premier Mussolini today with a warning that if the "so-called great democracies really are preparing for a decisive war" Italy and Germany will "march together to the end."

In a speech before 300,000 cheering followers, the premier hailed the Anglo-Italian pact as a triumph of the "majesty of Fascist Italy" but said he was not certain a similar accord could be concluded with France "because in the Spanish war we are on the other side of the barricades."

WORLD IS WARNED
Proclaiming Italy desires peace, the Fascist leader warned "the world should realize that the totalitarian world is ready for war."

Germany Dumping Cars In England—Seeks South American Markets

By WEBB MILLER
British United Press
LONDON, May 14.—Germany's trade policy, designed to bring foreign currency to the fatherland, has created a new problem for the British government, which is now faced with serious competition by German manufacturers.

British motor car manufacturers are loudly protesting the dumping of German-made automobiles on the British market. Southampton docks and garages are now crammed with cars which have been landed from Germany during the past few weeks. About 2,000 of these machines are in storage, with hundreds standing on the open quayside, and British manufacturers are reporting that since the first of the year one car out of every seven in the home market is of German make.

Motor makers here allege that German cars dumped on the English market receive a subsidy of

Small Householder Loan Is Cause of Vigorous Battle in Committee

INTEREST IS CENTRE FOR HOT DEBATE

Stevens Urges Banks Be Encouraged Enter Minor Credit Field

OTTAWA, May 14.—The small loan, the type the humble householder obtains when need of money, was the cause of a vigorous battle behind closed doors in the common banking and commerce committee Thursday and Friday, and will continue next week.

The committee, under chairmanship of W. H. Murray (Lib. Ontario), has before it the request of the government to report on the whole question of small loans.

A draft bill regulating small loan companies was submitted to the committee Thursday. It would limit the amount of interest, including service charges. The amount was left blank to be filled in by the committee but the suggestion has been made that it be 2½ or 3 per cent per month.

STEVENS OBJECTS

Hon. J. H. Stevens (Cons., Ontario) objected to such a bill, claiming it would be an admission parliament was unable to protect people from what is termed exorbitant rates of interest. He suggested instead that the Bank Act be amended, if necessary, to encourage chartered banks to embark to a greater extent in small loan business, either by establishing small loan departments along the lines one of the banks has inaugurated or by the banks uniting to create a new corporation to handle such loans.

He also proposed an officer be assigned by the government to conduct prosecutions where it was found small loan companies were dealing unfairly with any of their borrowers.

MORE TESTS

W. A. Tucker (Lib., Ontario) and J. T. Thomson (Lib., Ontario) joined to deal with the problem. They would amend the interest law to allow per annum, the maximum now allowed in the Money Lenders Act. They would amend the law to put more teeth in it, as a new definition of a money lender and rates of interest.

They would leave the questions of service charges for provincial governments to relate. These include the cost of investigating the standing of the borrower and drawing documents. However, in case a provincial government did not act, the Criminal Code would be amended under this plan to make it a criminal offence to charge a higher rate, including the service charges, than a maximum at which the committee would decide.

CREDIT UNIONS

Thomson and Tucker argued the draft bill would take away from the provinces the right to regulate service charges. They also proposed a Dominion grant of $3,000 a year to encourage universities to develop credit unions such as those developed by St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., and Saskatchewan University.

They contended the draft bill was more than a bill at all for it would tie the hands of the provinces in protecting small borrowers. In the vote held yesterday the supporters of the bill carried a motion to consider it to be 6 to 6.

PROTESTS ARE PRESENTED ON ROUTING ROAD

later of agriculture, Hon. W. W. Cross, minister of health and Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines.

SUMMIT BRIEF

Spokesman for the Didsbury report was W. A. Austin, who submitted a brief detailing objections to any re-routing of the existing highway.

Present with the delegation was E. P. Foster, Social Credit member of the legislature for Didsbury.

In the Didsbury delegation were Major Chambers, N. S. Clarke, W. H. Davies, Mr. Austin, M. Weber, G. E. G. Hammett and others.

Following the conference, it was stated by members of the delegation that they had been given a courteous hearing.

It was contended by the delegation that property owners and business firms in the towns concerned would suffer heavy losses if the highway was re-routed as proposed.

Attention was drawn by Mr. Weber to benefits of the present route and he dealt with tourist trade and other features. He informed the cabinet that "to change the highway means the discounting of our life work. It is essential to maintain the connecting link between the towns. The towns are the advance supply depots and their welfare should not be ignored."

It was contended by the Didsbury delegation that these smaller communities are advanced supply and distribution depots for the service of the front line farmers.

"They are a most necessary cog in the wheel of a high speed industry. Without them the farmer would be utterly handicapped. Without the cities would not exist, so that the argument, the quickest route between two points, Calgary and Edmonton, fails."

NEED MAINTAIN

"These advanced depots must be maintained in a high state of efficiency with well stocked and efficient supplies and other business so that the farmers' welfare may be kept up to the highest degree."

"In this connection, those stores and businesses must weather severe seasons and assist the farmers in their poor seasons. To do this, it is essential that all sources of revenue should be preserved for the merchants and other business men."

"It is submitted that these services are of the greatest importance to our agricultural communities and that the great question of additional highways is outweighed by the advantages of maintaining the existing route."

Yukon River's Breakup Brings Gamblers Riches

DAWSON, Y.T., May 14.—The Yukon river ice break-up, which was over today and those who gambled nearest to the time of the movement were thousands of dollars richer in money and merchandise from various pools.

Graville, Y.T. teamster, whose guess in the main pool was $34 a.m. William McKinley, Bear Creek blacksmith, collected almost $2,000 from various small pools.

He guessed the Yukon minute of the break-up. Many others in the town collected money from small pools while hundreds of commodity pools were won in games of the exact minute.

Taxes Where Due

Alberta's income tax law has been declared invalid, in respect to the requirement that a resident of Alberta must pay the tax on income derived from sources outside the province and not actually used in the province.

It is difficult to see on what principle of fairness such a provision is supposed to be based. If a man living in Alberta owns a farm in Saskatchewan, the rent he receives for it should not be taxed in both provinces, and the province where the rent is paid surely has the first claim. What return value does Alberta give the man, in such a case, for the money it demands from him?

The income tax is the fairest of all taxes. But there are some ways to apply it. One such way is to impose the tax where no service is given in return.

Those Canadian millionaires who make their winter homes in the Bahamas owe income taxes to Canada, not to the Bahamas. The same rule ought to apply between provinces.

Speeded Up

Those eastern members of parliament whose constituents demanded they kill the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act will have to go home and explain that the western Liberals frustrated the attempt. The Act survived committee, which means the westerners won the prolonged fight.

Not only does the Act stand; it is amended in a way to multiply its usefulness. The Government is now empowered to appoint "one or more" boards of review in a province, instead of the one board formerly allowed. By appointing as many boards as it may desire, the settlement of farm debts can be got through with in reasonable time. Nothing but a prolonged stalemate was possible while only one board could be appointed in a province.

By another amendment, the provisions of the Act can be made imperative in any province where it is not required. That will meet the objections of farmers in Ontario and Quebec who claim the Act is a barrier when they want to get loans.

But the first amendment will not suit the eastern farmer who holds shares in a mortgage company whose claims in the west are cut down by boards of review. It is to him the members who were supposed to kill the Act will have to explain why they didn't do it, and they will have to explain "plenty".

A Place To Begin

The Bourcier committee to enquire into relief conditions, having got organized, might fittingly start its survey by investigating the complaints that large numbers of single men are being cut off relief and find themselves helpless in consequence.

If what the representatives of these men say is correct, they are entitled to sympathetic consideration on their own account; and they should be given this in the interests of peace and order in this and other centres in the province.

Spring is the season when work normally becomes more plentiful, and it is right that unemployed men should be urged at this season to try and find jobs. But it cannot be overlooked that jobs are not plentiful in Alberta at present. If relief officers cannot locate places, it is pretty drastic action to tell idle men they must go forth with empty pockets and find places for themselves.

If such men stay in the cities they are not likely to find work, and must subsist by begging or breaking the law—and be pushed up by the police. If they "hop" a freight train to go somewhere else, they are liable to arrest and imprisonment for doing so. They are hungry, and they want the country roads, highways, and money, looking for farm jobs which do not exist?

The committee should look into this matter and see if there is not some course more likely to accomplish the purpose of getting these men off relief into employment.

Saskatchewan

Premier Aberhart of Alberta says Social Credit candidates will be put in the field in all constituencies in Saskatchewan, and since he heads the organization that is picking candidates, and running the party's campaign there, the announcement is official. If it sounds strange, coming from the premier of one province in respect to an election in another province, it is at least not unexpected. The plans have been known to be in the making for some time.

A parallel case would be that Premier Duplessis of Quebec should announce his intention to assist and direct the nomination and candidature of Action Nationale candidates in the constituencies of Ontario at a general provincial election. Ontario voters, it can be stated with confidence, would resent this as an intrusion, and express their resentment by defeating his nominees. Saskatchewan voters, if they feel that way, will have the same means to register their reaction.

Albertans will not view the invasion solely from the standpoint of their individual opinions of Social Credit. There is to be regarded also the broader question of whether it is desirable for a political party in one province to organize a crusade into another province, or even to be permitted to do so. For while the invaders will go into Saskatchewan on invitation of Social Credit groups there, it is the Alberta contingent that is counted on to do the heavy fighting. Franco invited the Italian troops to Spain, but they took charge of state and the show.

Should the adventure succeed in any substantial measure, provincial elections in Canada will not be strictly provincial in future. It will in that event no longer be assumed to be the exclusive business of the people of a province what issues are introduced in a campaign, what candidates are put in nomination, and who directs and does the campaigning for them. Provincial autonomy in local politics has hitherto been generally assumed to be jealously defended. That issue is at stake in Saskatchewan.

Editorial Notes

Thursday's wind storm was a pretty forceful argument for wind breaks, shelter belts, and conservation and establishment of forest areas. Anyone who sees the wisdom of these things when he has both eyes full of sand.

People along the Tofield-Camrose line will be relieved to know their railway is not to be abandoned and torn up. They know that people in hundreds of other communities are suffering and dread when they hear railway officials talk about ripping up tracks and cancelling trains.

Premier Duplessis says the Dominion Government has no power to appoint a commission to investigate the finances of Quebec. Well, it did. What he really means is that the commission has no power to investigate Quebec's finances from the inside without his consent. That isn't news. The Alberta Government said it first. As to the appointing power, what is to prevent Premier Duplessis setting up a commission to investigate the finances of the Dominion if he wants to?

Youth Is Needed

The general election campaign that is getting going in Saskatchewan will be the better for widespread participation of young men in it, whether as candidates or as helpers in other capacities. The extent to which problems of today relate to youth and the opportunities youth would have in life, suggest that the next generation might be making a mistake if it sat idly by and let older men run the whole show.—Regina Leader-Post.

Just a Suggestion

People who are fond of going about carrying banners inscribed with popular demands might do worse than add to their permanent collection of needwork petitions a despairing appeal to "Give the taxpayer a square deal." It would not be likely of course, to exert a moral weight at all commensurate with the poundage of the banner, but it is just conceivable that it might check the lamentable tendency, so noticeable nowadays on the part of those dressed in a little brief authority, to apply the surplusage lavishly provided in recent years by taxpayers (and ratepayers) to any other purpose but that of "declaring a dividend" for the benefit of the taxpayers (and ratepayers) themselves.—Johannesburg Times.

Our Next Crop of Timber

From an Address by Hon. T. A. Cresser

The province, as owners of the land, have the primary interest in the timber resources that are at present non-commercial. The greater part of the accessible merchantable timber consisting of the present crop in the lands of industry under license or lease. Many of these holdings, however, have not been granted or required on any co-ordinated plan. Conditions of tenure are such as to place the province largely to the standing timber. The provinces are now faced with the problem of adequate holdings to give assurance that merchantable timber holdings are concerned the provincial authorities, having made necessary adjustments for the benefit of the province, well demand of industry that its cutting practices be adjusted to conform with proper forestry principles looking to the establishment of a second crop.

I would like to say a few words here regarding tree planting from the standpoint of providing for our next crop. In the minds of a great many people, tree planting and forestry are the same thing. The impression is wrong, and needs to be corrected. Within present boundaries there are young growth areas such as I have been talking about which cover over 250 million acres. These young stands if protected and given proper treatment will produce a great deal of wood in a shorter space of time than can be hoped for through dependence on tree planting. It is true that in some places artificial re-creation by planting is necessary and desirable, such as on highly productive, idle forest lands, although in many fields, and in some cases, however, are special cases. The principal point is that every year we lose through preventable fires, over 475 thousand acres of our young growth. Within present boundaries there are, on average, 25 years, and over 400 thousand acres of cut-over lands on which there still remain residual stands of small trees.

To talk of the advisability of initiating large scale tree planting operations as the answer to our forestry problems, while waiting these natural assets, is to ignore the economic sense. There is need for wider public recognition of the importance of better fire protection in the immediate future, safeguarding the future of our forest industries.

I have spoken of the part that governments and industry should play in maintaining the economic position of the forest. It is not a part which any Canadian must assume as a personal obligation. I refer to care with fire, and the care of our forest resources. The year when we are entering upon another period of fire danger this is particularly important. Our forest resources are being annually reported as the result of human carelessness. In the final analysis the forest lands, ninety-two per cent of which are publicly owned, are your responsibility. Your cooperation is essential if we are to secure the greatest benefits for ourselves, and hand down to posterity, unimpaired, an asset of which we are now the trustees.

The continuing prosperity of our forest industries and the preservation of the indirect benefits that forest lands are sources of national import and as such are the concern of the Dominion Government. In view of provincial ownership and as the forestry problems are common to several provinces, the federal contribution can best be expressed by research and advice. The Dominion's Service of the Department of Mines and Resources, through the forest experiment stations, is concentrating on the development of proper cutting methods for merchantable timber and the development of management applicable to our existing young stands, to obtain from them in the shortest possible time the greatest number of trees of the highest volume per acre. Naturally study is directed to the restoration of these kinds of trees most valuable to industry. However, to secure a reserve, besides maintaining and comprehensive reserve, there must be the closest co-operation between the various provinces, the Dominion, and the forest industries. Investigation of phases of wood utilization are carried out in the Dominion Forest Products Laboratories. Studies of methods to control tree diseases and insect pests are conducted by the Department of Agriculture. In the Prairie Provinces, this latter department also provides farmers with tree-planting material.

In the establishment of improved forest practices several reinforcing factors must be taken into consideration. The first is the recognition of economic one and is concerned with the difference between the production costs and selling prices of forest products. For our industries must sell their products at world market, where intensive competition is encountered, the margin of profit in many cases is small. Many other factors suggest themselves to the forestry organizations, which advise their producers on how the better kinds of wood can be grown faster, and on the best methods of preparing the products of the forests to meet the requirements of world markets.

Here in Canada products can be manufactured from our Canadian woods which compare

Your Health

DR. FRANK MCCOY

As a general rule the average patient will not go to a doctor until he has developed some condition which is making him so uncomfortable that it is interfering with either his work or his play. It has been my experience in my private practice that the one single thing which makes the most people ask for help is pain.

If one hundred patients are asked what condition they would like to get rid of first, a large percentage of them will answer that they would be satisfied if they could only be cured of their pain. In other words, they seek professional aid because some part is hurting.

Another common symptom which sends patients to physicians is excessive gas. Usually the patients worry along with this trouble by themselves for a long time, using first one home remedy and then another, and then finally they begin to think it would be a good idea to look for more lasting relief and so they decide to ask for help.

Others are led to go to the doctors' offices chiefly because of fear. The greatest fears are those of cancer, of heart trouble, and of tuberculosis, although a good many patients are afflicted with Bright's Disease. When the patient develops some symptom which seems to him to be indicating he is on the way to developing the disease he fears that he will look for help.

As a general rule, the public as a whole is not well sold on the idea of prevention. The person who has what he considers a good health is therefore extremely unlikely to be examined or to undertake medical treatment as long as he is feeling well.

Paradoxically, the adult who will not check his own health will very often see to it that the health and development of the infant or young child in his family is checked. He is usually in this in spite of the fact that the infant or child may appear to be coming along in normal fashion.

A new book by Meakin on the "Practice of Medicine," has an interesting chapter on symptoms and reports that an analysis of the symptoms of one thousand patients showed that half of this large number complained chiefly of the following six symptoms: Pain, weakness, nervousness, indigestion, sleeplessness, and fever. Evidently, these were the popular ailments.

I find that about the same average holds good among my own patients and if we are looking for any answer to that sends patients to doctors, we seem to have most of the answers in that short list.

Common symptoms occurring with frequency were: Vomiting, constipation, poor appetite, excessive gas, nervousness and cough.

Questions And Answers

QUESTION—W. B. asks: "Would 2 teaspoonfuls of wheat germ, taken each day, be harmful to health in any way? Will it cause rheumatism or other ailments?"

ANSWER: Wheat germ is a very healthy food as a means of promoting appetite and digestion, and it is considered valuable because it is an excellent source of vitamins. Many studies have been made concerning its use, but so far as I am aware, none of these indicate the slightest possibility that it is in any way harmful to health. Sometimes as much as half a cup of wheat germ is prescribed a day—compared to this amount, 2 teaspoonfuls is a somewhat small amount.

QUESTION—F. A. inquires: "Could you tell me how to do to help my son, age 7, get rid of pin worms. Have tried everything under the sun, but nothing seems to help. The worms return very quickly."

ANSWER: When these worms are present in only small numbers, they may usually be banished by using a small plain water enema daily for a period of 1 to 2 weeks. When present in large numbers treatment becomes very much more complicated. Inasmuch as you have tried a home treatment without success, I suggest the best plan is to consult your doctor at once. He will probably recommend injections using bichloride of mercury or some other substance, and also the use of various remedies to be given by mouth. When large numbers are present, it is exceedingly difficult to dislodge them. The reason for this is that the parasites are present in the rectum, especially and even the small intestine, whereas the enemas clean out only the lower part of the colon.

Today's Text

How shall we sing the Lord's song in a strange land?—Psalm 137.

He is the happiest, be he king or peasant, who finds peace in his home.—Gothic.

It is not the number of words produced in any other country. In many ways, however, our research facilities are not as highly organized as those in some of its competing countries, although, in the field of wood utilization our laboratories are well equipped and are giving a lead to other countries.

Our industrial plants lie for the most part in the heart of the continent. They are comparatively near at hand are extensive areas of cut-over or burned over land bearing second growth timber, the result, not of our care, but of the action of nature. The conditions are favorable for tree growth. The accessibility of these areas increases their economic importance, and high quality timber can be produced in large quantities as growing conditions are better than in the more northern regions.

From the standpoint of future supplies our chief concern is that the composition of these young forests is changing. Species of high value are being replaced by inferior kinds. Production of timber supplies will be maintained by the call for the treatment of these young stands so that they will produce materials of the highest value.

Old Country

By J. E. MCCOBB

LONDON, Eng. (By Mail)—The secret of the tremendous popularity of Mr. Lloyd George, now well into his seventies, was revealed, at least in part, during a banquet given at the Midland hotel, Manchester, the most famous hostelry in the north of England.

The chiefs had done their best. Delicious meals permeated the whole hotel. But Mr. Lloyd George, who had remained here, the chief guest, remained outside the banquet hall until the cigars were passed around.

"I am the sort of man who can live on well with bread and milk and a little butter," he told a reporter. "That's about all I eat. I am a vegetarian. I never take any food in banquets of this kind."

J. E. MCCOBB

Another man of a different kind and brilliant speech which was broadcast all over the country.

The banquet was given by Lord Knutsford, head of the Lancashire News, Ltd., publishers of two of Manchester's daily papers and newspaper editor for 1888 Manchester. The banquet was for the city's celebration of its incorporation a hundred years ago. For over 1888 Manchester has been the centre as it was, had no local color, but it was a city which also celebrates its centenary this year.

In the guests were all the famous Mancunians who had been able to accept invitations and who were present and who had sent messages of regret. The night would begin to have the feeling that to become a great King-Edwin it was necessary to be born in Manchester or at all events to become associated with it early in life.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE was a freeman of the city, a double knight, a baron of Manchester and was a three times of the city. Lord Chief Justice Hewart, born in Manchester, was a member of the city. Lord Chief Justice Hewart, born in Manchester, was a member of the city. Lord Chief Justice Hewart, born in Manchester, was a member of the city.

Among the Mancunians who could not attend were Sir John Simon, who wrote that he was occupied in preparing his speech for the opening of his budget. Charles Canning, Robert Balfour (now old at 80 to travel), and Sir Arthur Whitton Brown, who flew in from Atlantic with Alcock, were other sons of Manchester who were absent.

Altogether it was a great occasion, and in view of the company Lord Knutsford had assembled, it was indeed how it came about that as the guests were duly reminded, what a host of Manchester was to be seen tomorrow. But the London papers, of course, had very little to say about it. The Manchester papers were full of it.

A Day in Canadian History

By FRED WILLIAMS

On May 14, 1861, the first of the 1861 Toronto was given a special privilege of the truth of the words that "it is not a blow nobody got," because on that day the capital of the Province of Canada was officially fixed at that city. When the union took place in 1841, the capital was located at Kingston, but after three years the power of the members of the Lower Canada was so great that it was decided to move the seat of government to Montreal. It had been retained there but for the destruction of the parliament building in 1849. On April 25, 1849, after Lord Elgin had given the royal assent to the Lower Canada resolution, the seat of government was moved to Montreal.

Then was Toronto's opportunity. It had the parliament building which had been retained there for years before. It was specially fitted for the purpose and it was there that the first session of its former house and military

That May 14 was a busy day in the history of the city. Special excursions by steamboat to the Niagara Falls were made by the Earl of Elgin, with all about it. CONSTRUCTION NOW BOOMING IN EDMONTON

Most Activity In Construction Since Pre-Depression Days

Biggest construction program undertaken since pre-depression days is now progressing in Edmonton, according to figures available at the city building department.

Commercial construction heads the list, but construction of new homes and alterations and repairs to existing dwellings come a close second.

HOUSES BUILT

Frame and stucco residences are reported to be the most popular type for the 1938 home, although permits issued by the city building department show that the small frame cottage is favored by those with a more modest pocketbook.

Property holders satisfied with their present premises are desiring certain improvements have launched out in a big program of alterations and repairs, records show. Interior changes, verandas and other additions represent a large part of the building work being undertaken this spring.

Those planning construction of any kind are reminded that regulations call for a permit issued by the city building department before work can be started. Certain building restrictions are also provided for in the building and zoning bylaws, and home owners should make certain they are not contravening any regulations before starting construction.

Potatoes will grow again even though their tops have been frosted. Danger of frost can be avoided, however, by planting them two weeks later than usual and making up the lost time by treating the potatoes before planting.

The accompanying Garden-Graph shows how to prepare the potatoes to speed them up and save at least two weeks of growing time. Cut the potatoes into pieces, each piece having one or two eyes, then place in flats. Cover with sand and place in light.

SALAD SERVICE

When Good Looks Get Together

Salad Service
How do you do, ladies. During the next few weeks I hope to meet you all through this column and chat for a few minutes each week about cooking, baking, and what ever problems you care to discuss.

Since everyone's so enthusiastic about gardening, and your young lettuce and radishes will soon be up, perhaps we should talk about salads today.

Salads, you know, are a psychological factor in your meals. They are used to stimulate the appetite, sometimes before a meal, and sometimes after a heavy meal.

Through salads you can introduce plenty of variety in flavor and texture into the diets of your family. Undoubtedly they are the most helpful item we have to relieve meat monotony.

There are several kinds of salads. First, the one dish meal or luncheon type. These are usually individual and of fish, macaroni, large quantities of fruit or vegetables. Then there are salads which are used as a cocktail. These are small very cold, and usually composed of fruit. Next, we have our dinner salad which is small, tasty, and made of ingredients which definitely do not "fill you up." A dinner salad may be served as a separate course or with the main course of your meal. Lastly, we have our salad bowl, which is probably the most common one. Here the family dietitian can show her ingenuity, artistic abilities, and also protect the family's health by supplying its members with plenty of roughage, vitamins, and minerals.

To be really successful however there are a few rules that you must follow in preparing your salads. Always remember to wash them as attractive and appetizing as possible.

Here's how:

1. Use materials of good quality—color, form, and flavor.
2. Have an eye for blending colors.
3. "Top off" your salad with an attractive garnish—radish roses, broken fern, sprigs of parsley, celery curls, olives, or any bits of color in attractive forms.
4. Avoid an appearance of mushiness or conglomeration. Have every piece of each ingredient large enough to be distinct.
5. A salad is not a stew!
6. Avoid an appearance of banding. Salads in elaborate floral forms come under this classification.
7. Have your flavors sharp.
8. Salads should be free from long stringy pieces, and all tough foods such as pimientos, peppers, etc., should be quite finely chopped.
9. Use the correct type of salad dressing and blend it well with the salad ingredients. Use sweetened dressing for fruits and tart ones for fish and vegetables.

Salads should be piled lightly, never packed or spread over the plate.

These are really very simple rules when you become accustomed to observing them.

Salads should always be thoroughly chilled. A good salad is no warmer to room temperature than a good soup. Therefore your electric refrigerator is indispensable. Chill or crisp all your ingredients before assembling them. Then cut the salad parts into desired sizes, dip in French dressing and pile on plates or in a bowl. Then top with mayonnaise or boiled dressing. This French dressing treatment is called marinating. Make your salads ahead of time so that you can leave them in your refrigerator and serve them beautifully chilled.

Jellied salads are very attractive. You can use your meat left overs, cold ends of vegetables, eggs, cheese, cottage cheese, nuts, olives, fruits and any number of things in them. Let your imagination run riot and become an artist in the salad field.

Next week I will give you some recipes that will help you in your salad experiments.

Crime Index Has Record Types of Offences and Methods of Criminals

OTTAWA, May 14.—A "crime index" has been established in the criminal investigation branch of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters here. It was announced today. The system used follows closely that employed by the Metropolitan police, new Scotland Yard, London, England, and is based upon the modus operandi system of crime detection.

Criminals, like other people, have definite individual characteristics, and there is a tendency among them to do the same thing over and over again in the same sort of way. The crime index takes notice of every detail of these characteristics and peculiarities of manner, and records them in such a manner as to make them almost instantly available for comparison with the salient features of new cases of a like nature. Identifications are made, not only on the crime type specially, but by the characteristic manner or plan of campaign followed in commission of the offence, and by this means it is often possible to trace new crimes to old offenders and sometimes several crimes, perhaps committed in different provinces, are linked up with one individual. Different police forces throughout Canada have been communicated with to have them contribute accurate data to the central index at Ottawa.

Historic Edmonton Theatre Celebrates Jubilee With Same Doorman 25 Years

Grand Opening of Pantazes, Now Strand. Held Under Greatest of Difficulties—Has Had 50 Managers

On the evening of May 12, 1913, the Edmonton Theatre, then the grandest stagehouse in Western Canada at that time, held its grand opening. His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Bullock and His Worship Mayor Short were in attendance. Charlie Wilson was taking tickets at the door and Kelly Koll was acting as a stagehand.

Since that grand opening night 25 years ago, the theatre has changed owners several times. It has been called Pantazes, the Metropolitan and now the Strand. It has had 50 managers. But in its 25th year the theatre has had only one doorman—Charlie Wilson, who is known to most Edmontonians than any other man in the city.

Manager Kelly Koll, who was then a stagehand on his own, and a single night of the theatre, with the theatre and now the Strand. It has had 50 managers. But in its 25th year the theatre has had only one doorman—Charlie Wilson, who is known to most Edmontonians than any other man in the city.

BRITISH FANCY SWINGS TO PAY WITH HOLIDAYS

Spring Is Well On With Old Question Of Time Off In Summer

By PAT TISSER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, May 14.—Spring sunshine has got British busy thinking about summer holidays. And more of them every year are thinking that way.

The whole problem is under examination by a committee with Lord Amherst as chairman. The committee was set up by the House of Commons the other day. But the committee is not yet ready to make a decision.

The rapid increase in the ranks of holiday-makers brought the problem of holiday time to the fore. August traditionally is the popular month. It is the best month for the family because schools are closed.

RAILWAYS FAVOR

The railway companies are in favor of the proposal to have a longer holiday season. They are in favor of the proposal because it would mean more business for them.

AARD-VARK.
OF AFRICA, HAS THE DISTINCTION OF BEING THE FIRST ANIMAL OF THE WORLD WHEN LISTED ALPHABETICALLY! SOMETIMES IT IS CALLED AN "ANT-BEAR."

THE NAME "AARD-VARK," MEANING EARTH PIG, WAS GIVEN IT BY THE BOERS, WHO RECOGNIZED ITS RESEMBLANCE TO A RAZOR-BACKED HOG.

THE ANIMAL REMAINS ASLEEP IN ITS BURROW DURING THE DAY, BUT COMES OUT WITH THE DARKNESS, IN SEARCH OF FOOD.

THE AARD-VARK'S DIET CONSISTS OF ANTS AND TERMITES, WHICH IT DIGS OUT WITH THE POWERFUL CLAWS OF ITS FORE FEET.

THE STRONG MOUNDS OF THE TERMITE OFFER LITTLE RESISTANCE TO ITS ATTACK, AND THE INSECTS ARE LICKED UP BY THE STICKY, EXTENSILE TONGUE.

WITHIN A FEW MINUTES, IT CAN BURROW COMPLETELY OUT OF SIGHT IN HARD, SUN-BAKED SOIL.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

By Blosser

ACCORDING TO THIS MAP, OFF THE NORTHERN TIP OF POINT CALM LIES THE SUNKEN HULK OF A TREASURE SHIP!

IT WAS SUNK IN THE YEAR 1876, AND WAS LOADED WITH A RICH CARGO VALUED AT $2,300,000!

WHERE DID YOU GET THE MAP?

I BOUGHT IT FROM AN OLD MAN WHO'S HAD IT FOR YEARS... I PAID $1,000 FOR IT!

WHY DIDN'T HE SEARCH FOR THE HULK HIMSELF?

HE HADN'T ANY MONEY TO OUTFIT A SHIP! AND I'VE GOT FULL EQUIPMENT!

AND YOU WANT FRECKLES TO GO ALONG?

BOTH FRECKLES AND NUTTY, IF THEY CAN GET CONSENT!

WELL, I KNOW YOU'LL TAKE CARE OF THE KIDS, DANNY, AND IT WOULD BE A GREAT EXPERIENCE FOR THEM, BUT.....

BUT WHAT? IT MAY ONLY BE A WILD GOOSE CHASE, WITH THE REWARD HARDLY WORTH YOUR TROUBLE!

WHAT WAS THE NAME OF THAT SUNKEN SHIP?

I'VE CHECKED THE RECORDS, AND THERE REALLY WAS A SHIP BY THAT NAME... THE STAR OF DOVER!!

WHY, YES! DO YOU KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT IT?

GREAT HEAVENS, MAN.... MY FATHER LOST A FORTUNE WHEN THAT SHIP SANK! HE NEVER DID ADMIT JUST HOW MUCH OF HIS MONEY WAS IN IT'S SAFE!

THEN YOU'LL LET ME GO WITH DANNY, POP?

GO? WHY, SON, I SEE NO REASON WHY WE SHOULDN'T KEEP MY FATHER'S MONEY IN THE FAMILY!!
